- Review emergency response procedures, explaining the appropriate means for summoning help in case of injury or illness, highlighting fire prevention issues, and discussing any of the area's hazard zones.
- Observe a model campsite. This could be a staff campsite that has been arranged to include a cooking area typical of those the patrols will be using.
- Remind that an appropriate grace should be said before each meal.
- Review safe food handling and storage, as well as guidelines for protecting provisions from animals.

During the Orientation Trail, staff members should emphasize to patrol members the importance of proper hygiene in the bathroom facilities and before any food handling. Staff members can be on hand to demonstrate the soap and water hand-washing stations at latrines and the model patrol campsite and to demonstrate the use and locations of waterless hand cleansers.

Environmental Concerns

Staff members should highlight environmental concerns that may affect participants during the course. These might include the following:

- Water: Encourage participants to carry their own water bottles and to drink from them frequently to avoid dehydration.
- Sun protection: Remind participants to use sunscreen, wear hats and protective clothing, and stay in the shade during the hottest part of the day.
- Insect protection: Encourage participants to use insect repellent and wear protective clothing.
- Poisonous plants: Ensure that participants can identify and avoid poison ivy, nettles, and other poisonous plants in the region.

Duty Rosters

Staff members will review a sample completed duty roster listing daily assignments, including patrol leader and assistant patrol leader. Participants will have this sample and a blank one that they can complete as a patrol in the Participant Notebook.

The Patrol Model Campsite

Before participants arrive, the staff should prepare a model campsite that demonstrates everything expected of the patrol campsites. Staff may use their own campsite, but only if it is basically identical to patrol campsites participants will develop and use.

The model campsite should include a fully equipped dishwashing station to use while explaining and demonstrating the group dishwashing system. Sanitation is a top priority in camp.

Staff members should explain that each participant will assess the model campsite using the Daily Campsite Inspection Checklist. People often absorb information better when they have something to do as they are learning, and the checklist encourages their full engagement while examining the campsite. The checklist addresses matters of health, hygiene, and
